

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA, THE NATION'S GATEWAY TO THE SOUTH

Alexandria, Va.

Is advantageously situated on the Potomac River, six miles south of Washington, D.C. Has channel to the Chesapeake Bay twenty-four feet deep. Under the Municipal Law capital and machinery actively employed are exempt from taxation. Manufacturers are offered, on the most reasonable terms, sites where they can have both water and rail connection. The Southern, Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Atlantic Coast Line, Seaboard Air Line, Washington-Southern, Norfolk & Western Railways, and Steamers to Baltimore, with connection by the way of Washington and Norfolk with Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, New Orleans, and Galveston, give Alexandria facilities for distributing manufactured goods equal to any in the country.

Furnished the Gazette by kindness of
